

JOHN M. WHITE

SPECIAL COUNSEL / WASHINGTON, D.C. METRO OFFICE

John focuses on giving his clients a strategic understanding of patents and the role they can play in achieving tangible business outcomes. Because any good IP strategy should complement and bolster the goals of the business, John organizes and advises on implementing that strategy via filings, licensing, and worldwide enforcement efforts. John has broad expertise in all aspects of intellectual property law, including patent and trademark prosecution, litigation, infringement and validity analysis, and opinion writing. He has successfully argued before the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit and the Patent Trial and Appeal Board. John further supports clients and other companies as an expert witness in USPTO procedure in District Court litigation.

Known as the “Dean of Patent Law,” John has helped prepare more than seventy percent of active U.S. patent attorneys and agents for their careers as patent practitioners. Since 1995, John has been the creator, author, and principal lecturer for PLI’s Patent Exam Course and has taught 1200+ would-be patent attorneys and agents annually. He has also taught 400+ U.S. patent examiners Law & Evidence.

BACKGROUND

In addition to his patent practice, John is the CEO of the PCT Learning Center, a resource for Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT), Hague, and Madrid Protocol training. He is also Chair of the Patent Exam Course for the Practising Law Institute (PLI), a nonprofit learning organization dedicated to keeping legal professionals at the forefront of knowledge and expertise and is their Director of Patent Professional Development.

Before joining Harness IP, John founded and ran two highly successful IP law firms as well as an international patent search and translation firm, an IP publication company, and a patent illustration company. John also has previous experience serving as a Patent Examiner and Speech Writer for the Commissioner of Patents while he attended law school and, before that, working as a Civil Engineer for the Federal Highway Administration.

Outside of the office, John is a downhill skiing and auto enthusiast. He enjoys repairing and restoring exotic and classic automobiles, travelling with his wife, visiting his children and grandchildren, and collecting single malt Scotch.
